

80 km/h : Four times the vandalism

“We know that the limit to 80 km/h is far from being unanimously accepted, and continues to stir up the anger of motorists, nearly two months after its implementation on July 1. [...]

Indeed, the degradation of fixed radars has increased sharply since July, quadrupling in number. Acts of vandalism ranging from simple spray-paint to the total destruction of devices, considered according to the association 40 Million Motorists as the "symbol of French tax abuse". The organization deplors the passage in force of a measure refused almost unanimously and asks the government to hear "the message sent to it by motorists".

However, it would seem that the state does not really think so. [...] As a reminder, degrading a radar nets you to a fine of €30,000 and two years of imprisonment. If you decide to join a group, then you can incur a fine of up to €100,000 and seven years in prison, enough to cool off even the most hot-headed. “

* a vandalised fixed radar

80 km/h : Four times the vandalism

“We know that the limit to 80 km/h is far from being unanimously accepted, and continues to stir up the anger of motorists, nearly two months after its implementation on July 1. [...]

Indeed, the degradation of fixed radars has increased sharply since July, quadrupling in number. Acts of vandalism ranging from simple spray-paint to the total destruction of devices, considered according to the association 40 Million Motorists as the "symbol of French tax abuse". The organization deplors the passage in force of a measure refused almost unanimously and asks the government to hear "the message sent to it by motorists".

However, it would seem that the state does not really think so. [...] As a reminder, degrading a radar nets you to a fine of €30,000 and two years of imprisonment. If you decide to join a group, then you can incur a fine of up to €100,000 and seven years in prison, enough to cool off even the most hot-headed. “

* a vandalised fixed radar