

Heritage Day

On September 24, 1995, the Republic of South Africa celebrated its first Heritage Day. The government wanted to create a public holiday which highlighted the histories of all racial groups. Heritage Day is celebrated every year on September 24 and takes the format of a cultural fair which showcases South Africa's living heritage. It includes indigenous foods, craft, dance, music, instruments and objects.

Some people wear traditional outfits, some visit heritage sites and some gather at stadiums for a day of celebrations which includes music, dance and speeches by local leaders. In 1996, the South African

President said, "When our first democratically-elected government decided to make Heritage Day one of our national days, we did so because we knew that our rich and varied cultural heritage has a profound power to help build our new nation." Today, Heritage Day encourages South Africans to come together to celebrate the rich cultural heritage and the diversity of the nation.

Heritage Day

On September 24, 1995, the Republic of South Africa celebrated its first Heritage Day. The government wanted to create a public holiday which highlighted the histories of all racial groups. Heritage Day is celebrated every year on September 24 and takes the format of a cultural fair which showcases South Africa's living heritage. It includes indigenous foods, craft, dance, music, instruments and objects.

Some people wear traditional outfits, some visit heritage sites and some gather at stadiums for a day of celebrations which includes music, dance and speeches by local leaders. In 1996, the South African

President said, "When our first democratically-elected government decided to make Heritage Day one of our national days, we did so because we knew that our rich and varied cultural heritage has a profound power to help build our new nation." Today, Heritage Day encourages South Africans to come together to celebrate the rich cultural heritage and the diversity of the nation.